

PATINA MALDIVES ILLUMINATES THE FESTIVE SEASON WITH THE MALDIVES' MOST SUSTAINABLE CHRISTMAS TREE

Fari Islands, Maldives – Patina Maldives, Fari Islands, is proud to unveil the Maldives' most sustainable Christmas tree for 2024, setting a new benchmark for eco-conscious holiday celebrations. This extraordinary tree is crafted entirely from natural materials such as dry rattans and bamboo, ensuring that every element will be repurposed after the festive season, leaving no waste behind.

"At Patina Maldives, we believe that luxury and sustainability can coexist harmoniously. Our Christmas tree is a testament to this philosophy, showcasing how thoughtful design and natural materials can create beauty with a lasting positive impact," said Anthony Gill, General Manager of Patina Maldives, Fari Islands.

The tree's minimalist design draws inspiration from the resort's ethos of balance and harmony with nature. It highlights the potential of renewable materials while embodying the festive spirit. After the season, the materials will be creatively repurposed into practical or decorative items, supporting the resort's ongoing circular economy initiatives.

Guests are invited to witness this stunning centerpiece and immerse themselves in a festive experience that echoes the resort's values of thoughtful design and sustainability.

This initiative adds to Patina Maldives' numerous sustainability efforts, including renewable energy usage, zero-waste kitchens, and marine conservation programs. By incorporating these principles into holiday traditions, Patina Maldives demonstrates that luxury hospitality can harmonize with environmental stewardship.
